Beloit College seeks an innovative, collaborative, imaginative, and dynamic librarian who is passionate about leading efforts to advance information and digital literacy, helping students develop research skills, and actively shape a changing environment in an academic library in support of learning and teaching. This is a regular, full-time position reporting to the Director of the Library/Chief Information Officer.

Lead the design, development, and delivery of an innovative information literacy program and instruction activities tied to curricular and co-curricular programs that could include research consultations, course-integrated instruction sessions, online tutorials and research guides, and workshops for students and faculty.

Provide research assistance in locating information and recommend methods of inquiry designed to improve students’ information literacy and research skills, as well as to enhance their academic performance.

Collaborate with faculty and campus partners to identify, implement and promote information literacy, digital literacy, and research skill initiatives including the use of digital tools and techniques to enhance research in support of a diverse community of learners.

Formulate and implement an ongoing, sustainable program of research support for students in consultation and collaboration with library staff.

Qualifications

ALA-accredited master's degree in library science (MLS) or library and information science (MLIS)

Minimum 1-year experience preparing and delivering instructional content and providing research guidance to classes and individuals.

The Beloit College Library and Information Technology Services (LITS) provide high-quality access to information services and technology resources. LITS is committed to providing leadership and services that enable students, faculty, and staff to creatively and productively enhance the college's academic, administrative, and co-curricular environments.
